Hurricane Dora
Is Powerful,
Heads for U.S.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Dora, a huge and powerful storm that grows by the hour, moved closer to the U.S. mainland today and made herself felt while still 700 miles out to sea.

Heavy seas already are increasing along the southeast Atlantic Coast and will continue to grow during the next two days, the U.S. Weather Bureau said in its 5 a.m. advisory.

At that time, the storm's center was located about 700 miles east of Cape Kennedy.

Highest winds near the center were estimated at 130 miles an hour. Hurricane and gale force winds extend out as far as 300 miles to the northeast and 150 miles to the southwest of the center.

The storm now covers an area about 500 miles across and threatens to swallow up tropical storm Ethel which was centered at 5 a.m. about 760 miles to the east southeast of Dora's center.

Dora was moving toward the west northwest or west at about 10 miles an hour and will continue on that course for the next 24 hours, according to the Weather Bureau advisory.

"The hurricane will continue large and dangerous. Seas are already rough over most of the southwest North Atlantic and will be gradually increasing along the southeast Atlantic Coast during the next two days," the advisory said.

The Weather Bureau said the present and predicted movement of Dora increases the threat to the southeast coastal sections of the United States.

"But since it is moving slowly, there will be little effect other than increasing seas through Tuesday."

State Death Toll Climbs
to Eleven

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three persons were killed and two others hospitalized early Sunday in a car-pickup truck collision on U.S. 165 seven miles south of McGehee.

Those deaths boosted to 11 the number of persons who died in traffic accidents in Arkansas for the weekend period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

The victims were identified as John Dale McClure, Jr., 20; Kenneth Gann, 20 and James Gallion, 33, all of Dermott.

State Trooper Gene Mabry said a car driven by McClure, in which Gann was a passenger, collided head-on with the truck driven by Gallion. The injured were in the truck.

Miller Steps Up Attacks on Humphrey While Hubert Hits
Again at Goldwater's Stand

By ROBERT T. GRAY

LOWELL, Ind. (AP) — Rep. William E. Miller challenged President Johnson on the draft issue, stepped up attacks on Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey on the ADA issue and made public an accounting of his finances in a Labor Day weekend burst of political activity.

The Republican vice presidential nominee moved across Indiana today on his first major campaign swing. He began it Sunday with the distribution of an accountant's report setting the net worth of Miller and his wife at $260,730.

President Johnson and Sen. Barry Goldwater, the GOP presidential candidate, authorized the issuance of their financial statements earlier.

Humphrey said he also would give a public accounting of his finances as soon as an audit now under way is completed.

Miller listed assets of $327,725, most of it in stocks and bonds and life insurance. He reported $39,686 in cash in four New York State banks and an investment account.

He listed liabilities of $66,936 in real estate mortgages and loans.

Miller said at a news conference Sunday night at Gary that the military draft could be ended within six months if Goldwater were elected president in November.

Miller ignored President Johnson's statement Saturday that the draft should not be a campaign issue.

The vice presidential nominee pressed Republican arguments for ending the draft and said a well-paid, volunteer program would be more effective and that the lives of all young men would not be disrupted by the prospect of military service.

Miller continued to attack Humphrey on the basis of the latter's role as a founder, former chairman and continuing member of Americans for Democratic Action.

Miller described the organization Saturday in his campaign kickoff speech as a radical leftist group trying to transform the United States into a Socialist totalitarianism.

Humphrey responded that, by attacking the ADA, Miller, was aligning himself with Communists and the John Birch Society.

'Money Crop'
Subject of Kiwanis Meet

"Growing a crop — of money, was very likely started in the olden days in Rome," said Mr. Frank Holleman, Secretary-Treasurer of the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company, in a speech to the Rotary Club last week.

The principle difference in those days and the present ones, according to Mr. Holleman, is that groups of people who started business ventures in those days could offer no assurance to the stock purchasers that the Company was financially sound or that it would be possible for them to profit from their investment or stand any chance at all of getting their money back.

Mr. Holleman explained the functions of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the changes that have been made in the law since it was first passed by Congress in the early 1900's.

He told the Rotarians the method Stock Companies and Corporations must use and get approved by the Commission before they are permitted to issue stock or sell bonds to finance improvement or expansions of any such businesses.

"One of the more recent bond issues by the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company required several weeks of my time and more than a ton of paper," said Mr. Holleman.

He explained his duties as Secretary and Treasurer of the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company and its subsidiaries and stated that although they may sometimes seem to be monumental, he enjoys his work and appreciates those with whom he works.

C. W. Bridgers, local manager of the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company and introduced Mr. Holleman. Club guests were Lloyd Spencer, a director of the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company, and Harold Hendrix of Hope, and Elmer Parks of Nashville.

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic vice presidential nominee today called Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater "a man of his word" and added, "I fear that he would fulfill his promises to lead this nation tail-long into the 19th century."

"In this election of 1964 the American voters have a clear choice — between vigor or vacuum, between progress or retreat, between responsibility or rashness," Humphrey said in remarks prepared for a Labor Day audience at suburban Barberton.

Humphrey cited aims he held by the Democratic administration, repeating after each listing, "but not Sen. Goldwater."

He said that under the Democrats, spendable income after taxes has risen more than 15 per cent in four years while wholesale prices are slightly lower.

But he said there still are too many unemployed and, with the postwar baby crop just hitting the labor market, "this, plus the impact of automation, requires us to find 300,000 jobs per month — as many new jobs each month as there are people in Akron."

"In short," he said, "this must be a land of opportunity for all, for the word 'opportunity' is at the heart of America."

The theme of opportunity, together with that of campaign dignity, was repeated time and again by Humphrey on a week-end visit to Minnesota before his arrival for speeches here and at Youngstown.

On his first visit to his home state since his nomination last month, Humphrey opened his campaign with a Saturday night speech praising President Johnson. He rolled through the open Minnesota countryside Sunday to a triumphal reception 40 miles to the west at Waverly, the hamlet where he makes his home.

It was a warm reception and the senator clearly loved it.

"I want to be happy in the work I am doing," said the senator, who was introduced to the Waverly audience of 3,000 by Gov. Karl Rolvaag as "the happy warrior of our generation."

Quints' First
Birthday
Tires Parents

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP) — The Prieto quintuplets bawled, wiggled and squealed through their first birthday festivities and finished in better shape than their tired parents.

"It'll be good getting back to work," said Eifren Lubin Prieto, 40, ruggedly handsome father of the five boys after a round of weekend partying during which they were showered with gifts, toys, cakes and baby foods.

The husky, bouncy quintuplets were born a year ago today, but birthday festivities were held Saturday and Sunday because their father had to return today to his $10.63-a-day job, operating an oil field drill.

The babies — Robinson, Otto, Juan Jose, Fernando and Mario — are growing and healthy. There is only a slight physical resemblance among them. Except for Robinson and Otto, they appear to have distinctive personality traits, according to their mother.

"They're no problem," said Ines Maria Prieto, 36. "They are never sick and eat well."

"They eat more than well, dear," interjected her husband, pointing to a cardboard box of 4.8-ounce jars of baby food. "They'll eat 45 of those in a single day," he said.

Baby food, milk and diapers are being provided free by local merchants.

The quintuplets romp in separate cribs in the large, air-conditioned nursery of the Prietos' new three-bedroom home given them by Prieto's American employer, the Creole Petroleum Corp.

Robinson is the heaviest at 29.3 pounds, while Otto, the most playful, scales at 27.5. They weighed less than three pounds each when they were born two months prematurely.

Gubernatorial
Camps Mount
With Tension

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tension in Arkansas' rival gubernatorial campaign camps mounted this weekend as Labor Day, the traditional "turn home" point in the general election race, drew near.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus continued his meetings with Democratic leaders around the state while his Republican opponent, Winthrop Rockefeller, shook more hands and prepared for a North Little Rock rally.

Faubus told party leaders he would rely heavily on them to mount an army of volunteers he said would be needed to overcome a well-organized Republican campaign.

Faubus revived his "poor boy" approach to the general election, telling more than 100 office holders and nominees that he had to work personally in the campaign, where Rockefeller has had organizational work done for him "by paid and hired employees."

Faubus replied to a Rockefeller criticism that the governor was spending his time with Democratic leaders rather than the people.

He said Rockefeller forces have brought in experts from Oklahoma and Texas, people who helped in the successful campaigns of Oklahoma's first Republican governor, Henry Bellmon, and Sen. John Tower, R-Tex.

He said this has allowed Rockefeller to get an early start in visiting voters.

Faubus said as soon as he finishes his organizational work, "Then, I'm going out and meet the voters."

Rockefeller continued his tour of the state from his special campaign bus. He was at Hampton.

Clue Sought on Fire's Origin

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP) —

Firemen searched the ruins of an 82-year-old woolen mill warehouse today for a clue to the origin of a fire that forced about 100 persons from 23 homes either destroyed or extensively damaged.

The fire in the predominantly Negro section near downtown Louisville Sunday was the second four-alarm blaze on record here. Several explosions rocked the area and a church was destroyed.

Students in Two Areas Bring
Out the National Guard

SEASIDE, Ore. (AP) — Youth

gangs and police stood toe-to-toe Sunday night as some 700 young people assailed police with rocks, clubs and a burning log.

Six youths led the rioters in a charge up the beach toward the main street of this coastal resort community, carrying a flaming log. They were met by 30 nightstick-wielding riot squad state policemen.

The group abandoned the log and began throwing rocks at the policemen, who charged, scattering the youths.

When the rioters assembled again in the downtown area, Wayne Nunn, executive assistant to Gov. Mark Hatfield, told them over a loudspeaker to disperse or they would be arrested.

Police began forcing the crowd out of the downtown area, clearing a block at a time. As the youths retreated, they broke store windows with rocks.

One youth rammed a fist through a window.

The youths found a wooden fence and began tearing it apart, fashioning clubs. The police charged again, driving the rioters away in small groups and ending hostilities for the night.

About 80 youths were arrested.

Nunn said the police and National Guardsmen would stay in town until Monday night.

Motel operators and businessmen estimated that the weekend rioting had cost them $500,000 in lost business.

Would Quiet
All Talk of a Backlash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sec

retary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz called today for the prompt removal of "two poisonous elements" from the American scene.

"One is the falsity of loose talk about something called the 'backlash,'" he said in a prepared Labor Day talk. "Rarely has the truth been so corrupted by a catchphrase."

"It is a matter of great importance that the AFL-CIO, meeting here in Washington last week, rejected squarely the infamous implication that American labor would condone the bigotry this phrase implies. Other recent events make it clear that its use is a slander and a libel designed to poison the wellsprings of truth upon which the democracy depends."

"Similarly, the excesses of violence which have erupted must be put down, lest they, too, result in the sins of a few being visited upon the many."

"Murderers in Southern swamps and rioters in Eastern cities must be identified clearly for what they are — corrupters of law and order, and enemies most of all to themselves. In a government by the people, violence is anarchy. It is not a matter of civil rights, but a matter of civil disobedience."

In his remarks for the traditional wreath-laying ceremony in honor of James Cardinal Gibbons, Wirtz said "the year we mark today has been, except for one brutal scar upon it, a good year. It has been the long-awaited, too-long postponed year of truth in our human

By HOLCOMB B. NOBLE

HAMPTON BEACH, N.H. (AP)—Between 5,000 and 10,000 teenagers rioted at this seaside resort Sunday night, storming the police station, setting fires, smashing property and throwing rocks and garbage.

Eight police officers were reported injured in addition to about a dozen youths. The number of arrests was estimated at 100.

State troopers from three states were called into action in addition to New Hampshire National Guardsmen and local police from a wide area.

Col. Joseph L. Regan of the New Hampshire State Police estimated that about 250 law enforcement officers were patrolling the streets of this town of 2,000 early today.

Most of the rioters were dispersed six hours after the trouble began but sporadic outbursts still were reported.

"It was a real tough crowd," one policeman said.

A year ago a smaller riot engulfed this coastal town. Several persons were injured and 70 arrests were made.

Extra precautions were taken this year to guard against another Labor Day weekend riot. A state police major said last week: "We expect no riots or trouble of any kind though we do expect a lot of traffic and a lot of people."

Hampton Police Chief John Roden said the rioting was "much worse than last year."

Police used tear gas, fire hoses and police dogs in efforts to quell the melee, which began about 7:45 p.m. when youths assembled in front of the Hampton Beach Casino, a dance hall fronting on the beach.

The rioters were driven away, but mobs began gathering in "in-between" sections. Police finally formed V's and marched from the center of the town to opposite ends, clearing the teenagers away as they moved.

Gov. John H. Reed of Maine dispatched 60 state troopers into the town. Gov. Endicott Peabody of Massachusetts sent 25 troopers.

There also were about 100 New Hampshire National Guardsmen on hand.

"A thousand kids went past my motel," said Judy Harris. "They were setting fires and smashing windows. I heard a gasoline bomb explode at one point. I was terrified."

Police said the teenagers were throwing rocks, garbage and soft drink cans filled with sand.

Several thousand youths retreated down the beach at one point and hid chest-deep in the water. Police finally mounted buildings, trained spotlights on them and fired shotguns loaded with rock salt at them to drive them away from the center of the beach area.

CHICAGO (AP) — Deaths on the nation's roads and highways maintained a pace today which the National Safety Council said could eclipse the 1963 record for a Labor Day weekend.

The nation's most prolific killer — traffic — had taken 382 lives at the latest count.

The big surge still lay ahead — the homeward rush for thousands of motorists who used summer's final holiday for visits and for drives to recreation areas.

Caught Her Man,
Slapped His Face

LONDON (AP) — British hurdler Patricia Pryce got off to a flying start, caught her man and slapped his face.

"He stuck a pin in my bottom," said Mrs. Pryce today on returning from an international meet in Enschede, Netherlands.

The young woman, Britain's 80-meter hurdler for the Tokyo Olympics, said she and British runners Mary Rand and Ann Packer were walking down the street in Enschede when a group of Italians came up.

"They tried to link arms and then came the old trick of trying to pinch our bottoms," said Pat. "But they stuck a pin into mine."

Mary Rand caught one of the pinchers with a stinging right-hander.

"I think I shocked this other man when I chased him and caught him," said Mrs. Pryce.

Mrs. Pryce, showed good speed on the track, too. She won the 80-meter hurdles in 10.8 seconds.

Texarkana in 1st Place on Arkansas Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texarkana garnered five of a possible eight first place votes this week to edge Fort Smith out of the No. 1 spot in the Associated Press Arkansas High School football poll.

The Razorbacks, who trounced Hope 35-6 in their season opener Friday, received three second place votes for 77 of a possible 80 points. They were in third place last week.

Fort Smith, on top of the poll last week with nine first place votes, got only two this week as they dropped to second. The Grizzlies defeated Van Buren 13-0 in their season opener Friday.

Little Rock Central did not play Friday but managed to pick up one first place vote as they dropped into third place.

Pine Bluff, in ninth place last week, moved up to fourth by virtue of a 14-0 defeat of Stuttgart Friday. The Zebras replaced Conway who dropped to sixth though not in action last week.

North Little Rock, in sixth place last week, managed only a 7-0 victory over Forrest City and dropped to eighth. Van Buren, as a result of the loss to Fort Smith, dropped to tenth place.

Broyles sounded an optimistic note on the overall outlook for the Razorbacks, however.

"He said the entire team, especially the offense, had been 'very receptive to everything we've done.'"

Broyles said he may have more surprises when he looks at the films of the scrimmage.

Until he does, Broyles has some key phases of play for the Porkers to work on.

"We're going to have to work on out running, blocking, passing and pass receiving," he said.

The Razorbacks resumed their two-a-day drills today.

Britons Pull Upsets in Tennis Play

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The head man of the International Lawn Tennis Federation sees the day not far off when there will be no such things as amateurs and professionals in tennis — there will be only tennis players.

"It's not a question of open tournaments any more," Eaton Griffith of London, a visitor at the U.S. National Championships said today. "The high-placed men in tennis are becoming more aware that amateurism is a sham."

"It appears that the best solution is to throw all players into a single category and let them play it out."

Meanwhile, the so-called amateurs of the world got into the fifth day of the national championships at West Side Tennis Club today with the powerful U.S. and Australian Davis Cup teams still intact but seeded ranks broken for the first time.

A pair of Britons, Roger Taylor and Mike Sangster, pulled off major upsets Sunday by eliminating the No. 6 and No. 7 seeded players, respectively, Manuel Santana of Spain and Nicola Pietrangeli of Italy.

Taylor knocked off Santana 3-6, 7-5, 6-4, 7-9, 6-4. Sangster blasted Pietrangeli aside 6-2, 6-2, 6-0. Pietrangeli complained of a stiff neck and couldn't serve.

Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex., America's No. 1 player, gave a devastating performance in crushing Perinelli of India 6-0, 6-1, 6-2.

Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., seeded No. 2 behind Roy Emerson of Australia, was little less impressive in beating Raymond Moore of South Africa 6-0, 6-2, 6-3.

Other members of the U.S. team — Marty Riessen Clark (Graebner), Charley Pasarell and Arthur Ashe — also won second round matches.

McKinley plays Pasarell and Ashe meets Riessen in featured third round matches today.

Australia's big two — Emerson and Fred Stolle — also won easily. Emerson trounced Butch Newman of San Antonio, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. Stolle eliminated Dimitri Sturdza of Switzerland 6-1, 6-4, 6-3. Emerson meets James McManus of Berkeley, Calif., next.

The best Sunday match saw Rafael Osuna of Mexico, the third-seeded defending champion, win a thriller from Donald Bell of Bethesda, Md., 11-9, 6-4, 10-8.

Nine winners of the US Open also won the U.S. Amateur golf title.

ton Saturday telling voters to take the welfare department out of politics, that "our young people are our most important treasure" and that Faubus has no right under the Arkansas constitution to promise that "he is going to pave the roads."

On his schedule this week were a speech at a North Little Rock Labor Day rally at 1:30 p.m., and a tour of Poinsett and Cross counties Tuesday.

In other political developments over the weekend, Lt. Col. Tim Shea, who founded a Democrats for Rockefeller group, said that he hasn't decided when to answer Faubus' criticism of him for doing so.

Faubus indicated that Shea was a disgruntled Democrat. Shea had said Faubus was stunned by his statement that the group headquarters he opened was a haven for "disenchanted Democrats."

Shea said, "We are getting a lot of encouragement. We are moving along and getting stronger."

Assassination Attempt

While campaigning for a third term, former President Theodore Roosevelt was shot by a would-be assassin in Milwaukee on Oct. 14, 1912. Roosevelt insisted on completing his speech.

New Trial Set
FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Circuit Judge Paul Wolfe has set a tentative date for the new trial of Fred Rush of Fort Smith, who is charged in the May 1962 slaying of his stepfather, Paul Rush.
Rush was found guilty by a Sebastian County Circuit Court jury, but the state Supreme Court overruled the conviction and said the circuit court erred in not permitting a change of venue.
The tentative date is Nov. 2, and the trial will be held at Waldron.

"DEAR ABBY"
DON'T MISS THAT APPOINTMENT!
By Abigail Van Buren
Dear Abby: I've been married for 26 years. I don't know how to word this and still get it in the paper, but I'll try. What I mean is, I still have the greatest respect and admiration for my husband, and I do appreciate his many good qualities, but the thrill is gone. Maybe I am expecting too much out of married life at my age, but I don't think so. I am 47 and he is 50. But I read in the paper all the time that lots of men who are 50 years old, and some older, get hauled into court on paternity charges and things like that. Is there some way of finding out if I should just resign myself to this way of living, or is there something I can do about it?
MISSING SOMETHING
Dear Missing: If you feel that you are "missing something," then you are! Maybe your husband's missing something, too. Make an appointment with your family physician for both you and your husband—and don't miss that!
Dear Abby: You always advise a husband or wife who has been unfaithful NOT to confess his unfaithfulness to his mate. I disagree with you. I think the wrong-doer feels much better if he can relieve himself of his guilty conscience. I am interested in knowing how you justify your point of view.
CONFESSED AND RELIEVED
Dear Confessed: To confess unfaithfulness to a spouse in order to relieve one's guilty conscience is selfish and cruel. Better to spare the mate the pain, and ask God's forgiveness. If the wrong-doer must carry the

The Story: Frank Ives has met Polly Renwick. She has told him that she needs his help.
XVIII
Frank had not known her kind of woman, so sweet and good, so pretty... and vulnerable. The clean smell of her still teased his mind.
But there was strength in her face, in the firm rounded lines of her—a man could not doubt she was a person of character. In the frankness of her regard he could read her trusting honesty, see that inner serenity and sweetness—the goodness of her, like a white flame shining through the dregs of fright even now darkly clinging to the edges of her assurance.
And with the feel, the remembered warmth, of her still plaguing his sense he said, disturbed:
"I'm going to have to get back," and he tried to keep locked away the prod of needs and hungers she'd inadvertently awakened as he watched her put the pistol in the pocket of her skirt. "What was it you asked me to meet you for? I mean," he floundered, flushing "you said there was something."
"Yes," Her eyes darkened, and dropping, widened, to fly up in startled focus. "You came here unarmed?"
"It didn't seem like—" Ives began; but her hand came out and clutched his arm.
"You shouldn't have! Never ride these hills without a gun!"
All her fright was back—she could feel the shake of it. She was afraid. For him! He could see the panic in that widened stare.
"There, there," he said. "I'll remember. Hereafter."
She took her hand away. Through her attempt to smile he felt its loss.
"You still haven't told—" he began.
"Would you do something for me? Something difficult and dangerous?"
He had to fight the urge to cry "Yes!" straight out. He reckoned he'd do it; she'd be hard to deny. No matter what. Still he looked at her warily.
"Depends..." he said.
"Oh, I'd pay you!"
What he saw in her eyes said a great deal more. She was a cup brimming over. She said: "It could involve spilled blood," and shuddered. "Your blood."
She caught his arm again, a world of strength in her fingers. "I'd never ask, believe me, except..." He felt the strength go out of her, the hand fall away. "I'm at the end of my rope. I've nowhere else to turn."

All the best that was in him rushed up in a hungering urge to reassure her, to bolster and comfort, to cherish whatever desperate hope had driven her through fright to seek his help—and she saw this.
Her eyes swam with trust and then closed, and she swayed, trembling hands reaching out to catch him. Green eyes sought his own and she cried, "Oh, Latigo..." in a tone of thanksgiving that was husky with tears.
Yet when she presently stepped back, sufficiently herself to appear embarrassed by their proximity, she said constrainedly facing him, "Can—can you be in town Saturday?"
When Ives hesitated her eyes grew round and some of the dread came back into her face, lightning the skin across the bones of her cheeks. "I warned you there would be danger—remember?"
"It wasn't that," he frowned. "I expect I can make out to be there. What time, and whereabouts?"
"It had better be after dark—about nine." Her eyes searched his look. "I will be in the store. Roper's Mercantile."
Ives, studying her, nodded. "But you still haven't told me..."
"There'll be time enough then." She caught up with her reins, eyes bright again, smiling. "You'll know everything Saturday. You have my promise. Latigo. Now wait here a bit, won't you, till I can get out of sight."

At the door she looked around, and reaching up impulsively, got the rifle off her horse. "You'd better have this," she told him, leaning it against the wall. "Until Saturday then..." Her teeth flashed briefly, and abruptly she was gone.
Ives stood deep in thought with the sound of her horse coming back off the slope. And when he could no longer hear it, he shrugged away the things that had been in his mind and stepped toward the door. But, as he was about to step through, he remembered the rifle, and, turning, reached for it.
The bullet whined past his shoulder and ripped into the wall.

XIX
Sometimes in dire stress—stark moments like these—the mind like a diving hawk will leap and fasten on notions too far right of the brush he fired again, slamming his slug through the open door.

Ives stayed put and was presently rewarded by seeing the drygulcher move some more branches. Ives resisted the temptation and a couple of minutes later the killer rose into view.
When still nothing happened the fellow quit his cover. Climbing out of the wash he stood peering a moment. With a flash of teeth he started for the shack. Ives, settling into his boots, squeezed the trigger.
The only sound the gun made was a dull, metallic click, but the drygulcher heard it. While he stood, shocked motionless, Ives, working the lever, squeezed his trigger again. There was another click.
With a yell the man spun and, frantically high-heeling it, dived from sight beyond the bank.
Ives, jaws clamped, was too bitter to curse. One dud he might have had, but two dry clicks could only spell an empty gun. So maybe she had set him up for this killer. He found it hard to believe in the light of what she'd said, that she'd be riding these hills with an unloaded rifle.
One thing he could be thankful for. Ives hadn't taken his cartridge belt away from him. Shells for his .44 six-shooter could be fired in this 1873 rifle. Scowling, his thoughts blackly considering what this gun might have cost him had he gone charging out there as he might very well have, Ives, filling the magazine, levered a load into the breach and stepped across to stand at the left of the door.
He had not recognized the man, but then he hadn't expected to, considering the distance and his newness to the country. Just the same, something about him began to scratch at Ives' memory. Was it the fellow's way of moving? Some gesture or stance?
Within limits, Ives reflected, he could play this game himself. He felt no uneasiness about killing the man and tried to think of some way he might bring the fellow back into his sights. He did not throw any sops to conscience, he was not concerned

Holiday Death
The count began at 6 p.m. (local time) Friday and will end at midnight tonight.
The death record for a Labor Day weekend was established last year when 557 persons died on the country's roads.
The U. S. Weather Bureau said most of the country would have clear weather.
The safety council had estimated before the holiday that traffic accidents would claim between 490 and 590 lives.
The Associated Press made a survey on a 78-hour non-holiday weekend to establish a basis for comparison. From 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 21, to midnight Monday, Aug. 24, 456 persons died in traffic accidents. Twenty others perished in boating mishaps and 30 drowned for a total of 506.
Last year, a total of 632 persons died during the Labor Day weekend — 557 in traffic, 21 in boating accidents and 54 by drowning.

with other people's opinions. He had a job to do and meant to get on with it by whatever means seemed most expeditious.
A prod pole was standing behind the door and with his hat on this he might simulate movement over there by the window. By such sleight of hand he could give the bushwhacker a feasible target—same kind of mark the jasper'd set up for him before Ives' long silence had lured him out of the bushes. (To Be Continued)

Luci Baine Ignores Protection
By BEN THOMAS
NEW ORLEANS La. (AP) — Ignoring security precautions Luci Baines Johnson, the 17-year-old daughter of the President, campaigned for her father with all the aplomb of a seasoned politician in Louisiana over the weekend.
Everywhere she went, she was cheered.
Luci flew back to Washington Sunday after christening a ship, seeing a pro football game and attending a festival.
She probably did her best to get Democratic Gov. John McKeithen to support her father. McKeithen has said that Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater seems to have the upper edge in Louisiana at present.
The governor's two oldest children—Fox, 17, and Rebecca, 16—were Luci's companions for part of her weekend visit. "She's so nice," said Rebecca.
Hundreds of teen-agers, crying, "Luci, Luci," rushed to the side of the younger daughter of the President Sunday at the annual Louisiana shrimp festival at Morgan City.
She put down her plate of boiled shrimp and moved into the crowd, shaking hands and signing autographs. Secret Service agents hovered in the background.
She cracked a bottle of champagne against the prow of the S.S. Louise Lykes and the caroliner slipped down the ways at Avondale shipyards into the muddy Mississippi River. The 5,000 dignitaries and spectators cheered.

Chisox Split, Yankees Win Over Athletics

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

Zorro has left his mark again. The latest victim is Boston's Bill Monbouquette, who received the unkindest cut of all from Minnesota's Zoilo (Zorro) Versalles.

Versalles, who five days before got the only hit off Baltimore's Milt Pappas, deprived Monbouquette of a no-hitter Sunday, hitting a two-out, two-run homer in the sixth inning that sent the Boston right-hander down to a 2-1 defeat.

Versalles broke up Pappas's bid last Wednesday night with a two-out single in the eighth inning. He got started earlier against Monbouquette. After an error by first baseman Tony Horton enabled Minnesota's Rich Rollins to reach first, Versalles lofted a Versalles pitch 385 feet for a homer.

"The pitch was a big mistake," said Monbouquette, who now has a 9-13 record. "It was neck high and a little inside. It was a bad pitch."

It also was Versalles' 20th homer. Versalles other victim, Pappas, proved that the wound heals quickly, posting his third consecutive shutout with a four-hitter as the Orioles defeated the Los Angeles Angels 2-0 and point of American League lead moved to within one percentage point White Sox.

The White Sox split with Cleveland, losing 2-0 to Jack Kralick's four-hitter before winning the nightcap 3-2 in the 13th inning on a pair of bunt singles, a walk and Pete Ward's sacrifice fly.

The New York Yankees, meanwhile, called on newly acquired Pedro Ramos to put down Kansas City in the ninth inning and preserve a 3-2 victory that lifted the defending champions to within 2½ games of the top.

In the AL's other game, Detroit walloped Washington 9-3. San Francisco edged National League leading Philadelphia 4-3, second-place Cincinnati whipped Milwaukee 6-3, St. Louis nipped the Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 11 innings, Pittsburgh shut out Houston 1-0 and the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the New York Mets 4-3.

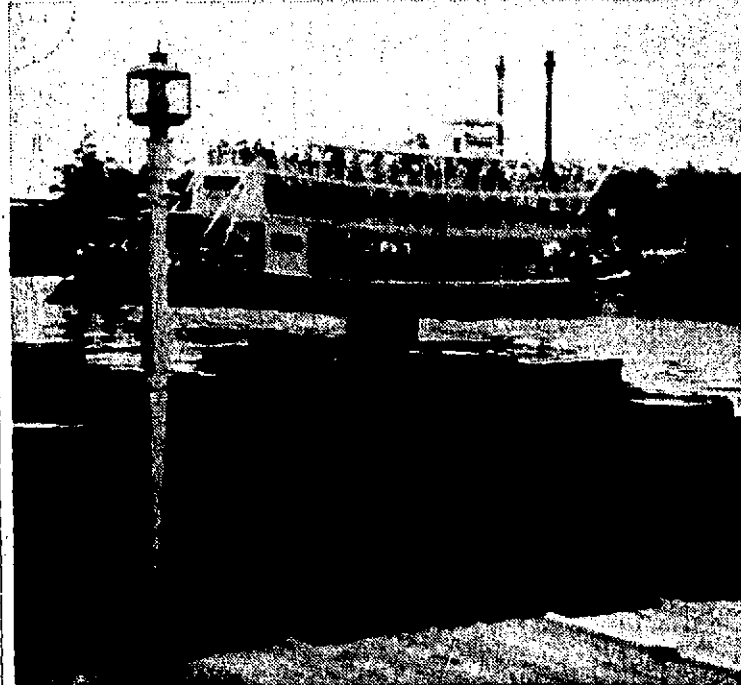

Pappas brought his record to 14-5, posting his fourth shutout against the Angels and his sixth straight victory. He hasn't lost since July 22. Pappas was locked in a scoreless duel for seven innings with Barry Latman, who left for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

The Orioles finally won it in the ninth after Boog Powell, making his first appearance since fracturing his wrist Aug. 20, drew a walk off Bob Duliba. Singles by Sam Bowers and Charley Lau brought in one run and a wild pitch enabled Bowers to score.

Gary Peters pitched 6 1/3 innings of perfect ball for the White Sox in the opener before Dick Howser became the first base runner on a bunt single past the mound. Peters, 16-8, lost in the ninth when Cleveland broke a scoreless tie.

Singles by Howser and Bob Chance, a wild pitch and an intentional walk to Max Alvis loaded the bases. Joe Azcue's sacrifice fly brought in the decisive run and Vic Davalillo singled home an insurance tally for Kralick, 11-5.

Mays Scores on Series of Wild Throws

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

There was bleary-eyed Willie Mays leading off first base. San Francisco's superstar, experiencing his almost annual September shakes, wasn't about to bother anyone. But Philadelphia reliever Jack Baldschun wanted to make sure.

And therein lies the story of how the Giants beat the Phillies 4-3 Sunday.

Baldschun tossed over to first baseman Frank Thomas to keep Mays close. Then he tossed a double and single. George Thomas also homered for Detroit, Washington ended a scoreless inning streak at 38 by scoring in the second inning.

cap in the 13th when Tom McCraw started things with a bunt single and promptly stole second. Al Weis' bunt single got McCraw to third before Floyd Robinson was intentionally passed. Pete Ward ruined the strategy by hitting a sacrifice fly that won it.

Hoyt Wilhelm got the victory with six innings of relief work—his longest relief stint of the season. He allowed only two hits, bringing his record to 8-8. Dick Donovan, 7-8, went all the way for the loss.

Ramos, acquired from Cleveland Saturday, was pressed into service after Roland Sheldon had held the A's to five hits through eight innings. Ramos came on after Sheldon walked the leadoff batter in the ninth, and gave up two hits before getting out of the jam.

Tony Kubek homered for the Yankees in the first and Bobby Richardson scored the other two runs after singling in the sixth and the eighth.

Don Demeter led the Tigers against the Senators, driving in five runs with his 20th homer, again, and again, and again. Finally it happened. Baldschun tossed to first but his throw got away and away went Willie.

Thomas returned the ball and threw wildly trying to head off Mays at third. He scored and the Giants kept their ever-so-faint pennant hopes still flickering.

Mays, making only his second start in four days, tripled in his first at bat but had gone out his next two times before drawing a one-out walk from Baldschun with the score tied 3-3 in the eighth.

Harvey Kuenn staged a two-run homer and Orlando Cepeda, had a solo shot for the Giants, but it was Mays' speed that produced the run San Francisco needed. The victory left the Giants 7½ games back of the Phillies.

Johnny Callison and Tony Gonzalez homered for Philadelphia but Juan Marichal held on for his 17th victory. He has lost six.

Elsewhere in the NL, second-place Cincinnati closed to within 5½ games of Philadelphia with a 6-3 victory over Milwaukee. Los Angeles edged New York 4-3, Pittsburgh blanked Houston 1-0, and St. Louis nipped Chicago 5-4 in 11 innings.

In the American League, New York beat Kansas City 3-2, Baltimore blanked Los Angeles 2-0, Detroit battered Washington 9-3, Minnesota edged Boston 2-1 and Chicago split with Cleveland, losing 2-0 before winning the nightcap 3-2 in 13 innings. Marichal, who was out for nearly a month with a bad back struck out 13 including seven in a row during one stretch. He missed tying the modern record for consecutive strikeouts by one.

Marichal started his string with one out in the third, fanning Tony Taylor and Callison. He got Richie Allen, Wes Covington and Gonzalez in the fourth and struck out Thomas and Gus Triandos before Ruben Amaro snapped the string by flying out to end the fifth.

Cincinnati starter Jim Maloney helped his own cause with a three-run homer and young Billy McCool protected Maloney's 13th victory, holding the Braves for the final 2-3 innings in relief. Tommy Harper had a two-run homer for the Reds.

Bob Miller halted a M. ternity in the eighth to save Howie Reed's victory for the Dodgers. Miller came on with one run in and the tying run on second but got Charley Smith on a bounce ending the threat. Jim Gilliam homered for Los Angeles.

Lou Brock bounced a single into left field giving the Cardinals their victory. Solo homers by Ron Campbell, Ron Santo and Billy Cowan had helped the Cubs build a 4-2 lead but the Cards tied it with two in the ninth before winning it in the 11th.

Jerry Lynch's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning gave Vern Law the only run he needed against the Colts. The Pirate right-

Richardson to Leave Baseball

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Second baseman Bobby Richardson, the heart and glue of the New York Yankee defense, is leaving baseball at 29 for a YMCA job in his hometown after this season. The Associated Press has learned.

The deeply religious Richardson long has been active in youth work and reports of his quitting the game have come up often.

The Associated Press learned Richardson has signed a contract to manage the YMCA in Sumter, S.C., and informed the Yankee management of his decision to retire.

Contacted Sunday night after the Yankees completed a three-game sweep over the A's, Richardson said:

"I haven't made such a decision—there's nothing to it and I don't know how these rumors got started. It's well known that I plan to get a job working with young people after my baseball career is over. Right now I'm just thinking about helping the club win a pennant."

Richardson possibly is the hander scattered nine hits and held on for his 10th victory.

best second baseman in baseball and his loss at 29 with several seasons left would be a major blow to the Yankees. This is his eighth season in the majors. His career batting average of .272 doesn't reflect his great value to the club.

Richardson's salary this year of $35,000 to $40,000 is several times what he'll make with the YMCA in Sumter.
